This title was first published in 2001. Significant changes have occurred in the Brazilian economy over the last decade yet this is one of the first volumes to draw them together into a comprehensive discussion. It is suitable for development economists, regional scientists, policy analysts and those scholars with an interest in access to a wide range of economic analyses of structural changes in the Brazilian economy.

Informed by systems thinking, this book explores new perspectives in which culture and management are harmoniously integrated and cultural heritage is interpreted both as an essential part of the social and economic context and as an expression of community identity. The combination of a multidisciplinary approach, methodological rigor and reference to robust empirical findings in the fertile field of analysis of UNESCO's contribution mean that the book can be considered a reference for the management of cultural heritage. It casts new light on the complex relation of culture and management, which has long occupied both scholars and practitioners and should enable the development of new pathways for value creation. The book is based on research conducted within the framework of the Consorzio Universitario di Economia Industriale e Manageriale (University Consortium for Industrial and Managerial Economics), a network of universities, businesses and public and private institutions that is dedicated to the production and dissemination of knowledge in the field. This volume will be of interest to all who are involved in the study and management of the cultural heritage.

Understanding development in Latin America today requires both an awareness of the major political and economic changes that have produced a new agenda for social policy in the region and an appreciation of the need to devise better conceptual and methodological tools for analyzing the social impact of these changes. Using as a reference point the issues and theories that dominated social science research on Latin America in the period 1960–80, this volume contributes to “rethinking development” by examining the historical events that accounted for the erosion or demise of once-dominant paradigms and by assessing the new directions of research that have emerged in their place. Following the editors’ overview of the new conceptual and social agendas in their Introduction, the book proceeds with a review of previous broad conceptual approaches by Alejandro Portes, who emphasizes by contrast the advantages of newer “middle-range” theories. Subsequent chapters focus on changes in different arenas and the concepts and methods used to interpret them: “Globalization, Neoliberalism, and Social Policy”; “Citizenship, Politics, and the State”; “Work, Families, and Reproduction”; and “Urban Settlements, Marginality, and Social Exclusion.&” Contributors, besides the editors, are Marina Ariza and Orlandina de Oliveira, Diane Davis, Vilmar Faria, Joe Foweraker, Elizabeth Jelin, Alejandro Portes, Joe Potter and Rudolfo Tuir&án, Juan Pablo P&érez S&áinz, Osvaldo Sunkel, and Peter Ward.

O impacto do planeamento do sector de energia eléctrica angolano no processo de integração regional da África Austral, é a estratégia que nós delineámos para que Angola, face à desestruturação da sua política macroeconómica, se insira no processo de integração na região. Na prossecução deste objectivo, após análise do sector em questão, delineámos como factor determinante deste processo a reestruturação da política tarifária versus planeamento, na medida em que ela é o garante de toda a política do sector e, por conseguinte, sendo parte integrante da política macroeconómica influenciará sobre a mesma e vice-versa. Este trabalho pretende identificar como a política tarifária versus política macroeconómica joga em simultâneo para o equilíbrio interno e externo de Angola e, consequentemente, para o processo de integração regional. Palavras chaves: planeamento, sistema tarifário, financiamento e investimento, dívida pública, estabilização e integração regional.

En respuesta a la necesidad de situar la salud en un lugar prioritario del programa de desarrollo la Directora General creó en enero de 2000 una Comisión sobre Macroeconomía y Salud integrada por un grupo de destacados expertos en los campos de la economía y de la salud. En el presente informe se ofrecen las conclusiones de la Comisión y se describe una nueva estrategia de inversiones en salud para favorecer el desarrollo económico en particular en los países más pobres del mundo. Asimismo se propone una nueva alianza mundial entre los países en desarrollo y desarrollados y se afirma que una intervención oportuna y decidida podría salvar cada año en los países en desarrollo para finales del decenio actual unos ocho millones de vidas que hoy se pierden por culpa de las enfermedades infecciosas y las afecciones maternas. También podría aumentar la longevidad la productividad y el bienestar económico de los pobres. Para lograr esos resultados serán necesarias no obstante dos importantes iniciativas: aumentar considerablemente los recursos que destinan en la actualidad al sector de la salud los países en desarrollo y los donantes y solucionar los obstáculos no financieros que han limitado la capacidad de los países pobres para prestar servicios de salud.

This book provides a comprehensive methodological and philosophical inquiry into, and a comprehensive scientific analysis of, the fundamental economic dynamics of capitalism as a world system.

This book presents a macroeconomic dynamic model à la Solow-Swan, including the market for labor, in a discrete time structure. The model is expanded to include expenditure on R&D and public expenditure on infrastructure. For each of the three models the results are shown in time series figures, which demonstrate that even small changes in the parameters produce responses in the time behavior of the main variables: from steady growth, to regular cycles, to chaotic-like time paths.

Pope Paul VI's notion of "integral human development," which was endorsed by his successors including Pope Francis, broke with the modern project of purely economic and technological development, resulting in an original understanding of development. Like a conventional notion of development, this theoretical construct favors economic growth, technological innovation, and the implementation of social programs. However, development is not just a socioeconomic and political issue, let alone a technical one; it raises, fundamentally, theological questions and points to important ethical challenges. Hence, integral human development is a vocation at which all personal, social, and political activity must be directed. As such, it is not a social but an anthropological program. Far from being a secular development theory, the notion of "integral human development" emphasizes the religious goal of reconciling humanity and God through the creation of a human family over and above material social and economic issues. Sustained by global principle and shaped by different cultural views, this book brings forth the uniqueness of this approach to development, examines its contribution to human welfare, and anticipates the resistances it may face.

Providing a contemporary overview of the debate amongst theoretical stands in economics, this book brings together contributions from a number of eminent scholars. It covers important issues in methodology and the history of thought, as well as economic analysis. The book is structured in five parts which: focus on the relevance of the history of economic ideas for current economic analysis centre on the role of classical theory of value and distribution contrast the equilibrium approach with an out-of-equilibrium perspective offer an evaluation of the legacy of Keynes in the light of the recent development of macroeconomics is dedicated to the issue of how institutions ought to be embedded in current economic theorising. Providing up-to-date, fresh and detailed perspectives on economic theory, this book will prove invaluable for students and academics in the fields of the
