Any domestic electrical installation work notified by your NICEIC / ELECSA electrical contractor to the Local Building Control Body is searchable through the site www.checkmynotification.com. You can check the details of the Building Regulations Compliance Certificate via the number on the certificate or the address where the work was carried out. Should you require a copy of a certificate, you can follow the secure payment process and a copy of the certificate will be sent to you in the post.

~~Certificate Check — NICEIC~~

Bare in mind that this certificate is only a report on the "existing" installation and for what it's worth just get another electrician to test it or issue you a certificate so that you can compare reports. On the basis that there might be a bare wire check the certificate if a 100% test has been carried out and clearly stated on the certificate.

As the term self indicates, the country of origin of a product does not refer to the country of the exporter, but to the country where it is obtained or produced. In many cases the country of origin is also the country from which it is exported.
However, there are various cases where these countries are different.
